

Operations/ Production Management Graduate Job

Kerry's multi-site production facilities offer you a fast moving environment in which to gain valuable experience running your own production line and being responsible for people management, raw ingredients, quality and costs.

Every day, a new set of challenges. Your area and plant equipment will need to be checked and tested. You will need to meet with your line manager to discuss staffing, efficiency and yield issues, all the while you will need to ensure your team knows exactly what is required and constantly monitor and motivate them.

Within six months you could be in charge of your own production team of anything up to 50 staff.

Recent Operations and Production Management graduates have rapidly moved into senior production and operations positions and there's no reason why you shouldn't do the same.

Kerry Group

Kerry Group is a world leader in food ingredients and flavours serving the food and beverage industry and a leading supplier of added value brands and customer branded foods to the Irish and UK markets.

Who we're looking for

In fast-moving, ever-evolving markets like ours, we're looking to recruit ambitious graduates:

- genuinely excited and motivated by challenge and change
- who are keen to travel or relocate throughout their career
- share our fascination with flavours, ingredients and branded food products, so need to be genuinely passionate about the food industry too
- with a 2:1 minimum degree in Operations Management, Food production Management, Engineering, Production Management, Process Control, Product Design and Manufacture or similar degree
- Languages: English and Polish fluent

Interested? Visit our website for more information www.kerrygraduates.com

Apply online at www.kerrygraduates.gtios.com

Deadline: Friday 25th January 2013